Do You Pay 66¢ for Sirloin Steak? — or 33 Cents?

We serve all tastes

A recent Government bulletin quoted sirloin steak in different cities at prices ranging from 33 to 66 cents!

We buy live cattle, according to quality, all the way from $7.00 to $20.00 per hundred-weight, live weight. Sirloins from these cattle vary greatly in quality.

Some retailers sell 33 cent sirloins. These steaks come from cheaper cattle.

Customers of other retailers demand choice sirloins at 66 cents. These retailers buy meat from higher-priced cattle.

Also, the retailer who carries complete stocks, delivers to your door, and lets you run a charge account, has to get higher prices than the retailer who runs a "cash and carry" store.

We sell beef of a given quality at practically the same price all over the country—except for slight differences due to freight rates.

And our profit hardly affects the price at all—only a fraction of a cent per pound.

News Notes from Movieland

BY DAISY DEAN

This little story which reached out from the moving picture screen, "Beauty and the Beast" or "The Lion and the Mouse," only it wasn't. It came un-manned and here it is: Patricia Palmer, one of the prettiest little thirty-haired girls featured in the Christie comedies, almost got a record for bravery the other day. She was asked by Sidney Scott, her director, to sit on a real live lion and pull his whiskers. Instead of screaming and stamping her foot, she proceeded to play with the animal with the utmost nonchalance.

"I'm on to these moving picture lions," she explained; "you can't kid me because I know he is so old his teeth are gone."

The story really should end here, but it doesn't. A few minutes later, after the fair Patricia had gone to her dressing room a series of shrieks were heard in that quarter. Every body ran to see what was the matter. They grabbed up weapons on the way and were all prepared to beat off a burglar, an escaped lion, or put out a fire. Upon arriving at Patricia's dressing room they found their lieutenant of a minute before perched upon a chair, quivering with terror and crying, "Someone catch that horrid mouse."

THE WISHING PLANE

When the wind began to toss the airplane, Captain Brave, steered it higher and higher, hoping that he could get above the wind, for you know the wind travels in streaks.

That is why sometimes, when it is nice and clear weather at home, buildings are blown down and lots of people killed in other towns by the wind. But the higher Captain Brave and Jack went, the faster the wind blew. Jack was sure that Captain Brave would steer the airplane safely to Beautiful Island, so he just sat still and watched everything.

Finally Captain Brave turned to Jack and said, "Well, Jack, something has gone wrong with my compass and I am afraid we are lost. What do you think we had better do?"

You will have to get another or further to tell you what a compass is. Jack felt real proud that Captain Brave should ask him what they should do.

Now Jack was just a little bit worried about June because mother had told him before they left Make Believe town, to take good care of his sister. So he said, "Maybe it was so down near the ocean again we will see Captain Bold's submarine."

Captain Brave headed the airplane down and they skidded along the water for an hour or more, but not a sign of submarine could they see.

By this time Captain Brave was worried because his engine was acting badly, and the wings of the airplane, weakened by the storm, needed repairs. So getting out one of his maps he tried to figure out as close as he could where he might be, and how far he was from an island where he could land.

According to the map there was an island only a few miles away and guiding himself by the sun whenever it popped out he steered for the island. When they came to it it reminded Jack of the places which his story book told him about as hiding places for sea robbers and pirates. There wasn't any beach at all, just great big high cliffs or rocks.

If Captain Brave and Jack had been in a boat instead of an airplane, they never could have landed. As it was they skidded over the top of the cliffs and landed on the flat top of the island.

It was the most lonesome place that Jack had ever dreamed about. There wasn't any grass on the ground, or flowers, or birds flying about. There were just a lot of big trees, whose branches started many, many feet above the ground. Jack couldn't see one single thing alive, not even a bug.

"Doesn't anybody live on this island at all?" asked Jack.

"I don't know, it doesn't look like it," said Captain Brave, busy with the airplane.

"I couldn't leave, if the airplane was broken, and we had to stay here until somebody found us," asked Jack.

"It certainly would," said Captain Brave, "but I guess we can go again as soon as the wind dies down a bit, and the sun comes out to stay so we can find our way."

But we will have to leave them here for a day.

"ROBIN HOOD" OPERA DELIGHTS WITH ITS ARTISTIC FINESSE

A happy opera comedy, "Robin Hood," the last production seen here in years according to theatre goers, was ably and artistically presented before a near capacity house at the Myers theatre by the De Koven Opera company, last night.

Sparkling vivacity, brimming over with good humor, adaptability to roles, and complete thoroughness in all ways marked the production as one of high class. The day-after-comment pronounced the opera as "delightfully satisfactory."

Scenic effects, costuming and orchestral accompaniment were complete. May Valentine as musical director, was "on the job" in every sense of the word in her mastery of the musical production.

Some seven or eight stars vied with each other in favor. Robin Hood played by Albert Farrs, Allan A. Dale of the outland band played by Alice May Carley, the sheriff with his eagle eye, Sir Guy, "the beautiful," Lady Marian played by Katherine Galloway, as well as little John, Frair Tuck, and Will Scarlett, each held a stellar role.

The criterion of effectiveness was reached in the second act which was one succession of artistic surprises from curtain to curtain. Each of the individual stars and groups of stars held the stage in the progress of the act. Each was the center of the audience's attention. Alan A. Dale singing "Oh Promise Me," held the honors if any one of the several stars can be singled out.

The merry story of the sheriff's conspiracy against the outlaw, Robin Hood, his estate and his bride to be, made a fitting background for the talent of the company. Each member of the company was the full expression of sheer joy.

THE GIRL WHO HAD NO GOD

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

Author of "K," "The Man in Lower Ten," etc.

(Copyright—Mary Roberts Rinehart)

"I saw you on the roof," said Elinor, barely able to articulate. "Once, I thought you had fallen."

"They nearly got me. It's rather sad, isn't it?" He stood, bareheaded in the cool dawn, and surveyed the ruin.

People meet great crises simply. She tried to find some word of sympathy to say, but what was there, poor child? She knew the true inwardness of that disastrous night. So, with pathetic eyes, she turned away.

"I'll go home now," she said. "I saw the glare—I—"

"Quite suddenly her lips trembled. 'I should like to help you with the new building.'"

"Fine," said Ward heartily. "We'll get to that before long."

"If you had fallen—"

He was not listening. It came to her then how far apart they were. To her his falling would have been an end of all things; to him, it would have meant the beginning of a useful eternity.

"If you wait a little, I'll run around and get my car and take you up."

She sat down again, obediently. She was glad to be with him a little longer.

Until recently, the work of the hand had always seemed a vague abstraction. Now one of its results lay before her. And there were other things fresh in her mind—old Hilary, dead of his revolt against law, and lying in state before an altar erected to a God he had not recognized. And Ward, watching her windows and thinking her the embodiment of what a woman should be.

Over her bitterness rose a hot wave of anger against Walter Huff. She had forbidden this thing and he had done it.

CHAPTER VII.

Ward brought her a cup of coffee, and stood by with satisfaction while she drank it. In his eyes there was a mixture of depression and joy. The parish house was gone, and this girl before him was to marry another man. But they would build another parish house, and who knew—

He drove her up the hill in his small car. At the top of a rise he stopped.

"No," he said. "I shall not be leaving you."

"You like it here?"

"Very much." He turned and looked down at her. It was unwise. He realized that at once. So frail she looked, so softly, tenderly feminine! And because he knew that, after the night, he had not yet got control over himself, the merest hand-clasp as she got out of the machine was all he dared. But at the top of the steps Elinor turned.

"You will never know just how sorry I am," she said, and went through her garden to the house.

From that Friday morning until the evening of the following day Elinor was quite alone.

Hour after hour she spent pacing the terrace, looking down into the valley. On Friday night, unable to sleep, she threw a negligee over her shoulders and went down to her garden. The village slept quietly, but there was a light in Ward's small window near the church. She remained on the terrace until the light was extinguished.

At dinner that Saturday Borodoy's empty place cast a gloom over the meal. Walter Huff came a little late. Under the ease of his greeting there was a touch of uneasiness as he met Elinor's eyes. When the servants left the room, Talbot leaned forward to Walter.

"Now tell us about it," he said.

Huff was frankly triumphant, but he still avoided Elinor's eyes.

"It's working out exactly as I knew it would," he explained. "Having once had a parish house they cannot do without it. The vestry carried only about a third enough insurance. And there's another point in our favor—the rector's away. He's got rheumatism. They are going to take up an additional purse to send him to Baden-Baden."

"When?"

"Tomorrow morning. And tomorrow being Sunday, the assistant rector, Elinor's friend, will have it in charge until Monday morning."

"I shall warn him," said Elinor suddenly.

There was silence for a moment. Talbot smiled. Lechbridge looked astounded. Huff, bending forward with his arms out before him on the table, coughed at Elinor squarely.

"That's it, is it?" he said.

"I asked you not to do—what you have done. The children used it all the time. They played basketball there. Besides, my wish should mean something to you."

Huff shrugged his shoulders.

"If I had burned a tenement full of people—"

"A man was nearly killed. He was on the ridge-pole of the church and they turned the full strength of the water on him. I saw it. I—almost fainted."

"You saw it?"

"I was there," said Elinor quietly.

Huff rose angrily. And who was it who almost fell off the roof? Your person, I suppose."

Talbot silenced the boy. It was Lechbridge who took up the argument. He understood her position and sympathized, he said. The fire was a mistake. But now that it was done—

He spoke of Borodoy's critical condition, of their safety that depended on his, and finding her attitude to be unyielding, took refuge in her father's memory.

"If anything comes out, it will all come out," he reminded her. "It seems to me, Elinor, that you owe it to your father not to interfere. This isn't a new plan. Four or five years ago when the parish house was first built we talked it over here. And it isn't as though we mean to hurt this fellow Ward. It will be three to one; he'll make no resistance."

"Yes," she said. "Three to one. That is the way we fight. Oh, I'm one of you, I know that—but it sickens me, sometimes."

The men were astounded, frankly uncomfortable.

The conference got nowhere. Elinor acknowledged their duty to the Russian, offered all her jewels, in fact, for his defense. But she stubbornly refused to countenance the attack on Mr. Ward. Huff lapsed into sullen silence, his eyes on her. The other men found every argument met by silence, except for one passionate outburst.

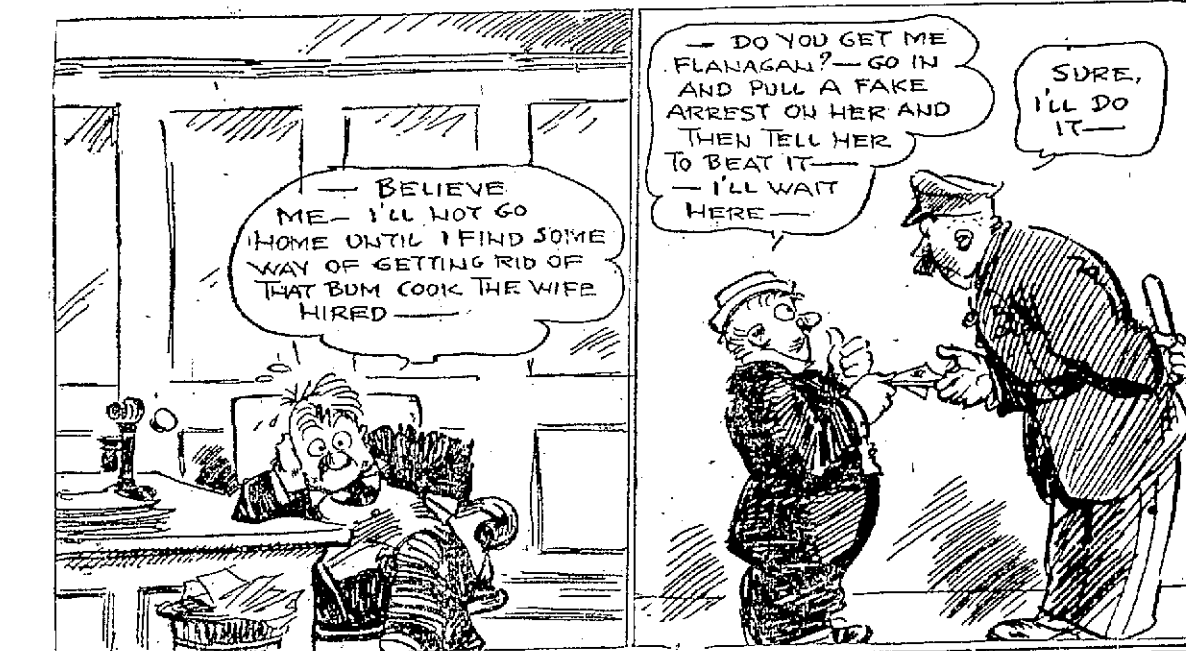

"He is my friend," she cried. "I have never had any friends, except once, years ago, a girl. It was Borodoy then who used my friendship for her. It was the Rutherford matter. Walter would not remember, but the rest of you—I tell you, I won't do this thing."

Talbot tried a new method. "It's a wealthy congregation," he explained. "It is not much for them, and it's safety for us. If we let Borodoy go up, and he thinks what he will about us, he can make it bad for all of us."

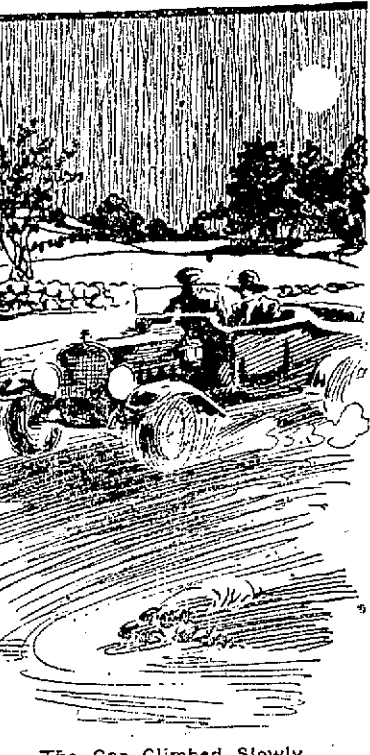

Elinor turned on him.

"I don't care a rap for the congregation. Do you think he will let that money go without a struggle? The the car and looked back. The night's devastation showed clearly, a black wound in the smiling heart of the valley.

Elinor watched him.

"It means a great deal to you, doesn't it?"

"It's rather a facet— Of course we will build again, but there are things that could not be replaced. That isn't what troubles me. The fact is, I am afraid I'm responsible."

"I was there last night, alone. I have a bad habit, when I have a mental problem to worry out, of walking up and down a room and lighting one cigarette after another. I am reckless with matches."

"Then perhaps, after all, Walter had not done it!"

"The car climbed slowly. 'Ward kept his eyes straight ahead. Elinor cast little shy glances at his profile."

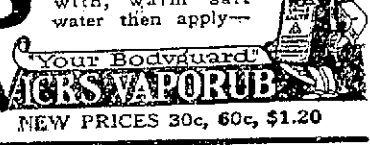

"You said you had something to worry out?"

He drew a long breath.

"I have had an offer to go to New York to a big church. It's rather a wonderful opportunity."

Elinor made no sign except to clutch her hands as they lay ungloved in her lap.

"Then you will be leaving—?"

Elinor turned on him.

"I don't care a rap for the congregation. Do you think he will let that money go without a struggle? The moment it goes into the offertory it ceases to be money and becomes a divine trust to him. He'll fight and—someone will be killed."

It dawned even on Talbot after a time that her solicitude was for none of them. When he realized it, at last, he sat back with folded arms and frowning brows. Here was mockery, for sure; old Hilary's daughter, reared on pure violence, and in love with a person—old Hilary's daughter and successor, defying the band in its hour of need, and quoting a divine trust, in extenuation!

In view of her attitude, there seemed to be nothing to do.

"We'll give it up, of course," said Lechbridge, after a pause.

Dinner Stories

Included among the passengers on board a ship crossing the Atlantic recently was a man who stuttered. One day he went up to the captain of the ship to speak to him.

"S-s-s-s-s," stuttered the man.

"Oh, I can't be bothered," said the captain, angrily "go to somebody else."

"The man tried to speak to everybody on board the ship, but none could wait to hear what he had to say. At last he came to the captain."

"Look here," said the captain, "I can tell you what to do when you want to say something: you should sing."

"Then suddenly, in a tragic voice, the man commenced to sing:

"Shouldn't and shouldn't be, shouldn't and shouldn't be, shouldn't and shouldn't be, shouldn't and shouldn't be."

Sandy and John were sitting in a car when a pretty girl got in and sat next to the former. He raised his hat.

"Well, shall we go over and sit beside her, and then you can introduce me?" asked his companion.

"Wait a bit," returned the canny Scot. "She hasn't paid her fare yet."

So you are a burglar!" said the prison visitor.

"Yes, I like other people's property, but I haven't the heart to be an anarchist and get it by rough work."

Terrifying Discomfort From Skin Diseases

Itching and Burning Eruptions Torture Victims.

Only those who are afflicted with Eczema, Tetter, Erysipelas, boils and similar so-called skin diseases can appreciate the real terrifying discomfort that comes from these disorders.

The constant plea of those afflicted is the oft-repeated question, "How can I find relief from this constant torture?" Not palliative, temporary relief that causes the terrible itching to abate for awhile, but real genuine relief that shakes off the shackles of the disease and restores the skin to its former healthy condition.

And temporary relief is the most that can be expected from local treatment, such as ointments, salves, lotions, etc., which is one reason why these diseases seem to hold on with such tenacity. It is not because they are incurable, but because they are improperly treated, that they appear to be so stubborn and so difficult to cure.

The real cause of the disease is a germ in the blood, which multiplies by the million, and sets up an irritation in some tender location of the delicate skin.

You must locate the headquarters of the disease, veins, and cut off their line of supply. The blood is saturated with them, and they will set up their attacks on the surface of the skin as long as they remain in the blood, no matter how much local treatment you take.

A million gallons of local treatment applied to the surface of the skin, will not eliminate the germs of the disease from the blood, and until they are eliminated your skin will never be free from the itching and burning discomfort.

If you want relief that is permanent, then take a treatment that goes right to the seat of the trouble, and removes its cause. Such a remedy is S. S. S., the purifier of the blood, that so thoroughly cleanses the blood, that every trace of disease germ is routed out, and a new supply of rich red blood is sent coursing through the veins.

S. S. S. has been used successfully in some of the worst cases of eczema and other skin troubles, and it can be relied upon to cleanse the blood of the last vestige of the disease. S. S. S. is also a splendid tonic and system builder, and it builds up and adds new vigor to the whole system.

Go to your drug store and get a bottle of S. S. S. to-day and begin the right treatment for skin diseases. Then write for free medical advice about your own case. Address Chief Medical Adviser, 107 Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Ga.—(Adv.)

Thomas Frusher, Evansville, the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dalby and family motored to Jefferson county, Sunday and spent the day at the Klemp home.

MAKING THIS TEST YOURSELF

And Find Out Where Your Blood Stands

The Power Behind the Strong Sturdy Men and Healthy Beautiful Women of Today

"To make strong, keen, red-blooded Americans there is nothing in my experience which I have found so valuable as cranio Iron-Nuxated Iron," says Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly Physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York and the Western County Hospital, Nuxated Iron by enriching the blood and creating new blood cells strengthens the nerves, rebuilds the weakened tissues and helps to instill renewed energy and endurance into the whole system. It often increases the strength of weak, delicate people in two weeks' time. It is estimated that over 3,000,000 people use Nuxated Iron annually as a tonic, and blood-builder.

RED CROSS NURSE MEETS JANESVILLE MEN OVERSEAS

Miss Edna Proctor, an American Red Cross nurse in service in France, has written the following letter to Mrs. Pearl L. Chesmore, R. F. D. No. 3:

"Charmont, France, Easter Sunday.

"Dear Folks: Am sending you all booklets and postals of places we visited on our furlough. This is the second day of duty since our return home. This a. m. we went to aerobics and heard a wonderful Easter sermon. Also had beautiful flowers. This noon we found our names posted to go on the fifth trip to the front. That means we will leave about Wednesday or Thursday. Now for our trip. Really I am so full it is hard to tell everything I have seen. Monday, April 7, we were told we could leave our leave, so you can imagine the getting ready part. I was on night duty, but came off the morning of the 8th. After making the necessary preparations, I had about two hours rest; then we had to go up town to make reservations and get transportation.

"We left Charmont at 8:40 p. m. the 8th, arrived at Dijon about midnight, just in time to get in on a midnight lunch at Base 103. I stayed at the base all night and next day saw Dijon, which is a very interesting city, as you will see by the cards I am sending. They have a wonderful museum. The Y. M. C. A. takes a party through twice daily. Went through three old cathedrals; the most noted is Notre Dame. There is a beautiful park named 'Wilson's Park' after President Wilson.

"At 7:40 p. m. Wednesday we left Dijon, going through Lyon, Avignon, Arles, Miramas, Rognac, Marseilles, Aubagne, Cassis, Toulon, Cannes, Les Arcs, Le Muy, Forjus, Grasse, Nice, Monaco, Monte Carlo to Menton. Arrived in Menton at 1:30 p. m. Thursday. France is certainly a beautiful country. You can judge for yourselves from the post cards. When we get almost to Marseilles we find large olive groves but this is not the season for them.

"At about Cannes the mountains begin to grow, and with the Mediterranean sea on one side, Alps in view on the other, and with shooting in and out of tunnels, we were kept busy trying to take in everything. We were surely blessed with perfect weather. The sun shining on the blue waters of the Mediterranean sea is a sight of itself.

"And flowers! I could never describe them. Long straight walls just one mass of purple clematis, geraniums about six or eight feet high, pansies with blossoms four inches across though some of the pansies were as pretty as the ones in Wisconsin. Orange and palm trees are beautiful. There are a great many different varieties of palm trees here.

"We stayed at the 'Hotel Venise' at Menton. It is built about as far back from the street as our old house is, and the path leading there is under a bower of orange and palm trees—the most beautiful arbor you could picture. There is a wonderful Y. M. C. A. there. From the Y we took trips. One day about 50 of us left at 8:15 a. m. in large autos. Went through Monte Carlo, Monaco, Nice, St. Raphael, Cannes, Villeneuve, Loubet, Roquefort to Grasse. We stopped at Monte Carlo and went through the famous gambling den, the Casino. Have heard so much about it that I was glad to see it. No Americans are allowed to play. Games begin at 9:30 a. m. each day and lighters must be out by then. They say they average one suicide a day from there. One cannot enter the game with less than five francs, nor more than 100 francs. A franc is now worth 18 cents. The value changes as often as the moon does.

"At Grasse we had dinner and went through the oldest and best perfume factory in the world, the one that makes perfume from real flowers. They also make soap and powder. After spending about two and one-half hours in Grasse we started home by climbing the mountains. Just as we were nearing Nice, an airplane lighted near us, so of course we had to go over and see it. When we got there we found another just ready to fly, so had this as a side issue.

"At different places along the line we stopped and hiked to some old castle or ruined city. Saw so many ruins, built in the time of Caesar. Could see the snow on the Alps, and it was about 80 degrees where we were. We hiked an altitude of 3,400 feet on that trip. Got back to Menton about 7:15, covering 175 kilos, or 115 miles. Tired, but it was worth it. The next trip was by train-car to Cannes. Left at 1:30 p. m. We left about 50 strong at 9 a. m.

"We reached Castillon about 10:30 and hiked up and up and up to a city ruined 32 years ago by an earthquake. Then came almost straight down a goat path. We got some fine pictures all along the way. Have not got them finished yet. When we got on the big bridge our car stopped so we could get out and take pictures. Got back to our car at 11:45, weak-kneed but happy. We reached Sospel about 12:30. Can you imagine how hungry we were? But dinner was waiting for us and we did justice to it. Bread! I wish you could see the amount of bread those boys stowed away. Not but what we nurses got our share.

"The French have a way of their own of serving bread. For a crowd they put a whole loaf on table at once. No knife, only the one you eat with. You can break or cut it to suit yourself. At Sospel we saw a girl bride, 1,800 years old. We walked down a street where we could hold out our hands and touch the buildings on both sides.

"Went into an old cathedral, they say, 2,200 years old. Guess it must have been handed down, as Christianity is not that old. Anyway, it was old. There is a Bible and painting there 2,000 years old. All the decorations were of solid gold. There were 20 Egyptian marble pillars—the grandest sight I ever saw. Left Sospel about 3 p. m. and reached Menton about 4.

"After refreshing ourselves at the hotel we proceeded to Italy. Menton is the last station before reaching the Italian border. We went over in a two-horse carriage. Had about an hour there and got back at a 7 o'clock dinner. Are only allowed just so far, then an M. P. stops you.

"We left Menton about 2:30 p. m. Wednesday for Paris. Arrived in Paris at 3:30 p. m. Thursday. We took all our meals at the Y. W. C. A. Thursday noon, while we were eating, some one walked in but Mr. MacIntyre. He sat down to eat with us, and as we were recovering from the shock of seeing each other, I looked up and there was Ray. He was in the uniform from Janesville. Mr. MacIntyre is in Paris waiting orders for work in Germany. Mr. Ewing is located not far.

"Eric and I are going to try and get our things ready to go. While Mr. MacIntyre is there, and he will take us around. Paris is a wonderful city. We went into some of the large shops in the forenoon and took a sight-seeing walk in the afternoon. Saw so much that it is like a dream. Saw the wonderful painting, 'Pantheon de La Guerre.' You know the picture you have heard of. I can describe it. It is truly wonderful. It is a building built for the purpose. It is a circle canvas. All nations concerned are painted. Each has a position to itself. Each picture is life size and is taken from a photograph. Will do my best to get a miniature reproduction of it if it is possible.

"We left Paris at 9:15 p. m. and arrived in Charmont at 1 p. m. just one hour A. W. O. L. But the R. T. O. stamped our orders for the 18th, so we are still safe. An ambulance came after us, and at 1:20 we were in our only home in France. We must admit that it seemed good to get back.

"If France only had better transportation facilities it would not be so hard to leave. I surely don't want to go to take a trip like that. We come back with an entirely different opinion of France and her people. The French in the cities we visited are as a rule of the higher type, a great many of the women speak English. But when we got to Paris is where we needed French. That is the first time that we have really felt the need of it. So I have decided that if we are to remain over much longer I shall have to study more French.

"Base 90, I hear, is to be booked to sail. Guess that only means the unit and not the nurses. You see all the nurses are casuals sent here from all over France. None of us were originally attached to Base 90, until of late, when we came here to work. They say the last ones coming over will be the ones booked to stay. Don't know many. Perhaps when we get back from the front we won't want to.

"I hear from Henry Ransom now and then. He is at Brest. Expect most of the Janesville boys are home now. Hope to hear from you all soon. Also hope this finds you all as well and happy as it leaves me.

"Love and prayers to you all.

SWENSON APPEALED TO FOR DRIED PEA MARKET

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Madison, May 13.—The Wisconsin state council of defense is using every effort to move the 4,000,000 bushels of dried peas still left in the state. State Marketing Agent W. P. Jones has just returned from a trip through the producing sections and has been able to move a few small lots. The American market for dried peas is strictly limited, most Wisconsin shipments in normal times going to northern Europe. After unsuccessful attempts through the food administration and council of national defense to secure foreign markets, an appeal was made direct to Magnus Swenson, former Wisconsin food administrator, now in charge of relief work for Food Administrator Hoover at Copenhagen, Denmark. W. S. Heddles, chairman of the state council of defense, sent the following cablegram to Mr. Swenson: "Four million bushels excellent quality Scotch, Green, Alaska dried peas in hands Wisconsin farmers. North European market closed. No action possible through grain corporation this country. Barnes refers to you and Hoover. Movement Wisconsin peas depends on market your territory. Will you provide it? Urgent."

BRAVE AMERICANS

Portraits of Medal Winners. Made at the Front by Official Portrait Painter of the A. E. F., JOSEPH CUMMINGS CHASE.

Sgt. E. J. Moore, Signal Corps, 89th Division.

Under heavy shell fire on November 4th and 5th, 1918, Sgt. Moore established and maintained a line of communication to the advanced machine gun center, Beaucourt. He laid the wire and stayed right there, exposed to constant fire and saw to it that no Boche could put his wire out of business. Every break he mended, working incessantly all day and all night, climbing trees and poles, keeping that wire in order. His gas mask was shot away, but he liked it so well that he kept it in the day following, extending the line to the assaulting battalion of the 355th Infantry, and maintaining it. Again on the night of November 10, and morning of November 11th, Sgt. Moore rendered invaluable aid to the 156th Infantry in Pouilly, and thence to La Pigneppe Farm. Shell fragments tore through his gas mask, and the air was full of flying shell fragments. Through it all he showed utter disregard for personal safety. That's the kind of a boy he is. Careless Use of Soap Spoils the Hair

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified coconut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly. The hair scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified coconut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

"A Fish Tale"

DO YOU recall that a fellow once sneakily rowed out to a spot in the lake where the largest bass in Christendom was said to be lurking? Of course, he didn't expect to catch the big whale; in fact, he was after sun-fish. But he was baited for bass. He cast off. Zing! The bottom of the lake grabbed his hook and started for China with it. Then the devil stepped in and, taking charge of the line, tied it into a hundred dainty knots. All the fellow did was hang onto the pole. Yet, after the tumult and the cussing died, there in the boat lay the biggest big-mouth of the season.

Remember it! And how modest you felt to have folks point at you and say, "That's the guy that got that six-pounder"? If you want to live over again those old zero hours, light up a mind-clearing Senero, the cigar of pleasant memories.

THE POLICE FORCE OF THE BODY

DAY and night—without ceasing—a struggle is going on in your body between the germs of disease and the white blood corpuscles—the police force of the human body.

If this police force weakens, disease germs gain a foothold—sickness follows.

Constipation is the most common and dangerous way of corrupting the human police force. Food waste remains too long in the intestines—decays—poisons the blood—and opens the way for attack by the germs that cause tuberculosis, diphtheria, pneumonia and a multitude of other ills.

The culpable habit of using salts, pills, mineral waters, castor oil, etc., to force the bowels to move, makes this condition even worse, as constipation returns almost immediately.

Nujol is entirely different from drugs as it does not force or irritate the bowels.

Nujol prevents stagnation by softening the food waste and encouraging the intestinal muscles to act naturally, thus removing the cause of constipation and self-poisoning. It is absolutely harmless and pleasant.

Nujol helps Nature establish easy, thorough bowel evacuation at regular intervals—the healthiest habit in the world.

Get a bottle of Nujol from your druggist today and keep your police force on the job.

Warning: Nujol is sold in sealed bottles, bearing the Nujol Trade Mark. All druggists insist on Nujol. You may suffer from substitutes.

Simple Frocks for the Girl Graduates

By FLOISE.

The day which is the sweet girl graduate's own special occasion is fast approaching, and while sister is being entertained at showers and trying on her trousseau in anticipation of her special June day, the wedding day, the school girl is taking examinations in preparation for hers. The past few years have been full ones for the graduating lassies. There have been many attempts to introduce uniforms to take the place of the usual fancy graduation frocks. Indeed in many schools and even colleges the middy blouse and white skirt have been used. To my way of thinking there can scarcely be a less fitting garb for a graduate of a college than the shapeless middy blouse. It is with pleasure that I see the return of the simple little lingerie gown for this great occasion. Those dainty pure white frocks are not elaborate, but are plain and practical, like the youthful and sensible maids who are to wear them and almost all of them may be worn at any hour of any summer day.

The young girl who expects a diploma in June will have a hard time choosing her graduation gown from these little frocks because each one is so alluring. The one at the right is one of the prettiest of the season in its simplicity. It is called a "petal" frock on account of its many soft tucks. White georgette is the material. In the center is a lovely lingerie frock of white voile trimmed with clusters of tucks and plaiting. A tiny gilet, button trimmed and a soft satin sash are attractive features of it. Very stunning although extremely plain is the frock on the left. It is a practical frock and may be worn long after the eventful day. White voile hemstitched and fagotted by hand is made in simple straight lines with a long tunic.

Simply but, with very few exceptions (Corona Borealis, for example) there never was any intention to fit a name to the picture. No ancient could ever have thought that the group of Orion looked like a hunter, or could have seen a lion in Leo.

The Heavens in June

(By DR. C. S. DRAHMAN)
Columbia University Observatory Staff.

Though we agree with James Russell Lowell in his praise of June days, yet we wish to put in our claims for the equal beauty of June in the sky. A single glance at the brilliant map will show the richness and splendor of the evening sky.

The western half of the map contains no fewer than four constellations which are easily visible with the naked eye; but the fourth, Neptune, is not to be observed without the telescope. The lowest down on the western horizon is the giant Jupiter, farther up is the brilliant Venus, and near the group of Leo, not far from the first-magnitude star Regulus, is Saturn, the planet with the rings.

In addition to Regulus, the first-magnitude stars to be seen are Capella in Auriga to the north, Pollux of the Heavenly Twins in the west, Spica in Virgo to the south, and Arcturus in Bootes, which at the map time will be found nearly overhead in the north. Next we have the well-known triangle formed by the three stars, Vega in Lyra, Altair in Aquila, the Eagle, and Deneb in Cygnus, the Swan. It will be remembered that the brilliant "new" star which flashed out so suddenly in 1918 was in this group of Aquila. To the southeast is Scorpio, with its principal luminary, the red star Antares.

When we observe the stars without the aid of any instrument, we note perhaps three things about them; the grouping into constellations, the color, or tint, of the individual stars, light, and the relative brightness, for which the astronomer uses the term magnitude. It is customary to call the brightest 20 stars in the heavens "first magnitude" stars, and the next 20 "second magnitude" stars, and so on, to make the thing more definite, the average brightness of these 20 stars is taken as the exact standard. Altair is practically equal to this standard but Vega, Arcturus, Capella, and Altair are brighter, while Regulus, Spica, Antares, Deneb and Regulus, all are less bright.

But let us not think that the magnitude of the star as it appears to us is in itself a true indication of comparative size and true brilliancy. The apparent brightness of a star, as seen from the earth, is dependent upon two factors, the true luminosity and the distance. Two equally brilliant stars, one at a distance of 100 light-years and the other at 1000 light-years, would appear to us as if they were of different "size" of a star depends upon a number of factors, the true luminosity and the distance. For example, the brightest star in the entire heavens is Sirius, the Dog Star, which is one of the closest stars to the earth, and it has been calculated that its real luminosity is equal to about 45 times that of the sun, whereas Arcturus, which appears much less bright than Sirius, is equal to no fewer than 500 suns.

It takes light emitted by Arcturus one hundred years to reach us; that of Sirius makes the trip in a little over eight years. Capella and Arcturus are considered to be of equal magnitude, but Capella is much the closer to us of the two and is equivalent to a light-emitting power of about 200 suns. The number of examples could be much enlarged.

Color of Stars Interesting.

The color of stars is another topic which arouses the greatest interest. Look at the deep-red Antares, then at the pure-white Capella, then at the bluish-white Vega, and then at the orange-tinted Arcturus. It was long ago suggested that the color of a star was an indication of its temperature, and perhaps of its age and development. If we take any non-inflammable material, e. g., iron, and heat it up, it will soon become red-hot, dark red at first, and pass gradually through orange, brighter red to orange, then to yellow to white, and finally it will appear bluish white. In each case it will mean that in the emitted light a certain color predominates. The color, if we take the case of iron, is a true indication of the temperature, and vice versa.

While in the case of stars the problem is not so beautifully simple, as we are not then dealing with an object of homogeneous composition, this classification, according to color, developed into a classification according to spectral type. The spectral type is a term, is of fundamental importance in the science of stars, and undoubtedly gives a true picture of the stars into groups which have a true meaning in stellar evolution. It is used to be considered axiomatic that stars gradually cooled off from a hot state, to which they had been brought by some cosmic cataclysm, and that therefore color was an immediate criterion of age, but it does not at present appear that stars of necessity cool as they develop; under certain conditions they may grow hotter.

Grouping is Accidental.

The grouping of the stars into constellations is entirely a matter of accident. As a general thing, stars in the same group and called by the same group name are not at all connected systematically. They are simply seen in the same direction in space from the earth; seen from a planet belonging to another star the groupings would be entirely different.

Most of the constellation forms have come down to us, though not without modification, from the ancient Greek and Babylonian astronomers, or even their predecessors. The fantastic names are ancient, and the amateur may wonder how anyone could see in the different groups what the names

Indiana University Star Will Play With Janes

By George McManis.

SIGN SECOND SACKER FOR LOCAL TEAM

Manager Jimmie Murphy of the local team is keeping the wires hot in an attempt to arrange a game for Sunday on a foreign diamond. He stated this morning that he expects to schedule a game before the day closes. A week from Sunday the second game of the season at the fair grounds.

John Pierce, former star second baseman of Indiana University was signed by the local management Tuesday for the season. Pierce is well known throughout the middle west as a baseball player and his presence should considerably strengthen the local infield.

Hard Hitter
He will play the keystone sack for the Janesville nine and Manager Murphy claims that Pierce is the greatest first baseman of the local organization. Murphy claims that the new second sacker is a hard hitter and a sure fielder.

Janesville baseball fans are more than pleased with the showing made by the new team at the fair grounds last Sunday and with a few weeks practice the team will be in shape to tackle some of the strongest semi-pro teams in this section of the country.

Change Expected
Several changes in the present lineup are being contemplated by Manager Murphy. He announced this morning that another new pitcher would be added to the string in a few weeks. He is also scouting for an outfielder.

About 40 rabid baseball fans attended the game at the association park last Sunday but there were at least another 500 in the city who would have been on hand had they known that the game was to be as good as those who witnessed it reported.

Janesville was not only a match for the Beloit team but they were their superiors and after fighting hard for 10 innings the locals demonstrated that they were there with the punch when needed.

For the past two years the baseball fans of this city have been clamoring for a team and now that they have one some of them are a bit reluctant to give it the proper support. The team is being improved every day and it is now up to the fans to get behind the men and support them right up to the minute they step on the diamond to start their series with the Pirates of Beloit.

ST. PATRICKS WIN

Garnering hits when they counted resulted in the St. Patrick's school nine copying their second game from the Third ward Badgers last evening by a score of 17 to 7. The St. P.'s aggregation gathered 21 hits during the fray.

BY KID BIFF
Nope, this ain't by the kid. Today he's home with something on the watermark of his neck which yesterday looked like mumps.

"But that won't keep me away from Toledo July 4," sez he.

We know where there's a swell pile of boxes for a little blaze when Co. A goes home. Well, it's off unless Jimmie Murphy's Lawrence Lunches take a fall out of some other team soon and wait a celebration all of their own.

Can you Sox. They're going strong and lead the braves by 2 1/2 games, also the league.

Stoughton raised $4,000 for a city baseball team. The Norwalks should have a pretty good advertisement for their city this season.

It's just about time for the depot "dips" to start fattening their batting averages—also their own lean pockets, at the expense of the university.

Up at the "Y" the youngsters are competing in a regular indoor track meet. So many contestants have been entered that it will be some time before the finals are reached.

High school baseball players are receiving the game, not only at the school, where it had been dead and a losing proposition for years, but also about town.

Wonder what they'll do with the fair grounds Friday night? Back in the rainy days of using the two Janesville tracks were the peer of courses in the northwest and today they stand as the fastest pair of ovals in the same territory.

Baseball, just getting a start in the city, will also be given a deathblow—to say nothing of the work to raise the money to be spent on new grounds, buildings and improvements necessary to the reputation of other such fairs as Janesville has seen in the past several years.

With the heavy of Hun-potters back to town now would appropriate for one of those w. k. "drives" to boost the rifle club membership.

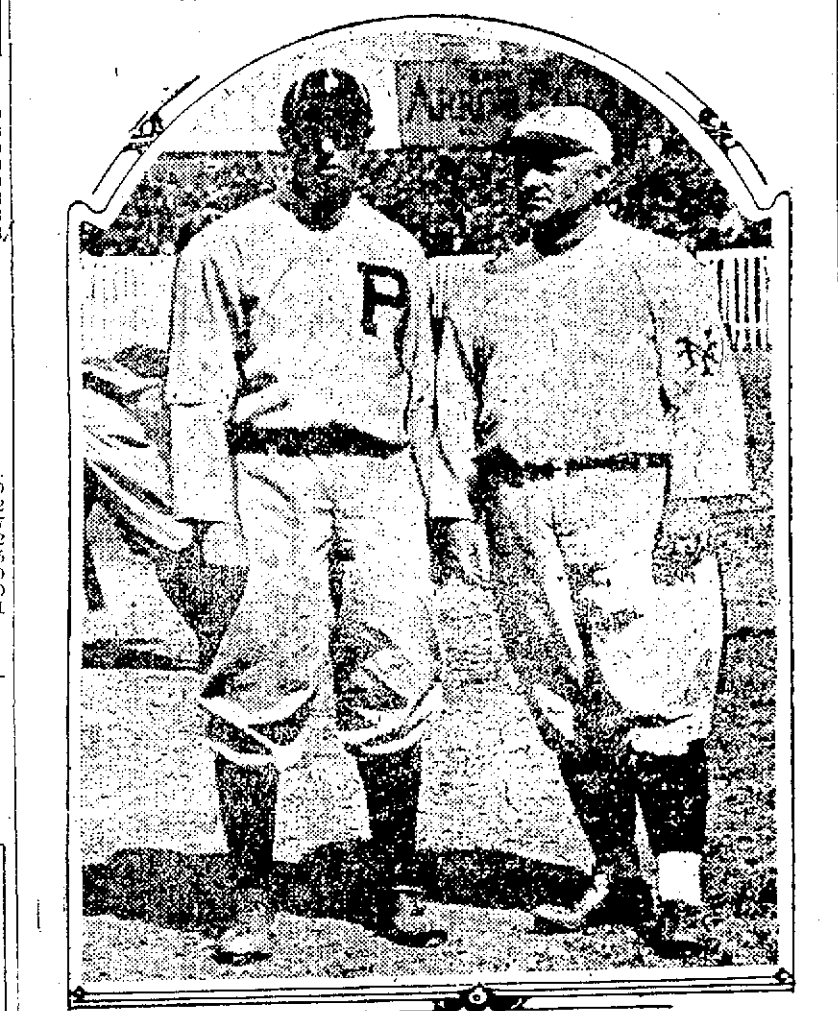

Speaking of drives, the Elks are going to have one in July for the Salvation Army.

Mat fans are promised some good bouts when fall breezes commence to breeze. Promoters of the spring shows realized the weather had a lot to do with the attractions. Nevertheless in some places amphitheater groups have drawn large crowds early in August.

Not much sport today. Too many other things to harp on. See yuh tomorrow.

Coombs May Pester McGraw as in Days When Jack Faced Giants in Big Series

Back in the days when the Giants and Athletics met in the world series Jack Coombs, as one of Connie Mack's great pitchers, put a crimp in McGraw's world pennant hopes. New York, May 14.—Return to the maximum list of twenty-five players for each club in place of the twenty-one player limit adopted earlier in the year, was decided upon at a special meeting of the National League here today. SENIOR-JUNIOR GAME TOMORROW

High school interest is at present centered on the championship class baseball game scheduled for tomorrow night at 6:15 at the fair grounds between the junior and senior nine. Both teams have won two games and are confident of emerging the victors. High school juniors claim that "Ted" Hager, starting pitcher of All-Star team, will have not difficulty in taming the heavy hitting upper classmen. With Crowley behind the bat the battery looks invincible. The third year men have also a fast infield, composed of Fred, Raubacher, Tuck and Hager. Their outfield is somewhat weak, but Hager is in form there will be no need of outfielders.

The senior gang have Sprackling and Dugan doing the twirling. Both are good hurlers and will doubtless keep the juniors hils few and far between. Roy and Nuzum have been doing their catching.

Put out the picture on all four sides. Then carefully fold dotted line 1 and 2. Fold each section underneath accurately. When completed turn over and you'll find a surprising result. Save the pictures.

Hugh Frayne.
"Don't waste it, save it," is the slogan America ought to adopt from the experience gained in the war, says Hugh Frayne of the American Federation of Labor. Speaking before the National League for Women's Service recently, Frayne told how the "sorting over" of military apparel during the war saved millions of dollars.

Velvet

THE FRIENDLY TOBACCO

Horse Sense About Tobacco

Good tobacco ought to be like a well-bred hoss—all th' kick taken out but all th' sperit left in.

You see, half the secret of makin' a good hoss is in the breedin' an' half in the breakin'. Selectin' tobacco that's grown right is only half of makin' Velvet. The agein' is the other half.

Thar's only one kind of agein' that gets th' right results—Nature's own. Nature's no clock watcher. She does a job right whether it takes two years or two thousand.

So when she gets through with the fine Kentucky Burley that we put awav in wooden hogsheads for two years, it's just right.

It ain't been hurried none, or short-cutted. It's a Nature-done job.

All kinds of things are packed in tobacco tins, but your good neighbor will tell you "Velvet is the real pipe tobacco." Prove it for yourself.

GREAT MAY SALES

First Annual Spring Clearance Sale Starts Thursday,
May 15th, and Continues Until Saturday, May 31st

Entire Clearance of All Spring Merchandise

As is our usual custom to carry no merchandise over from one season to another, we have gone thru our stocks and have placed discounts on the regular price tickets that will move every garment from our racks. Summer merchandise is already starting to come in and we must move this Spring stock from the racks and shelves. Every Spring garment is in the sale, nothing is reserved. We urge you to come in early, inasmuch as the prices quoted will start the sale of these garments with a rush the first day, and probably just the garment you might want would go to some one more fortunate, unless you are here early. Sale starts Thursday morning at 8:30 o'clock. Be here when the doors open.

Your suit problem will be answered by this offering; answered with spic-span, up-to-the-minute styles in types suitable for all, from the distinguished plain tailored effects to the most elaborately trimmed.
